

“

I got to let go of deep hurts and disappointments I've had my entire life. Talk about freedom. You feel so much lighter — you are not shackled anymore.

ROBERTA RICHARDSON Uuvanagaa Atigah Kitigruq · Anchorage, Alaska · Healing Group participant, now LIM staff

WHAT IS A HEALING GROUP?

Some wounds don't heal on their own. Boarding schools. Family separation. Loss carried down through generations. A Healing Group is a small circle of people who sit with those wounds together, in the light of Scripture, and begin to set them down.

The curriculum comes from the American Bible Society's Trauma Healing Institute. There is no pressure to share. You come as you are, and you take what is meaningful to you.

- ✓ Always free — lunch included at in-person sessions
- ✓ All are welcome, whatever your faith or background
- ✓ Confidential — the group agrees to that together
- ✓ Held in villages, on reservations, in cities, and online

THREE WAYS TO BE PART OF IT

COME TO ONE

Find the next group near you — or join one online.

PRAY

Prayer Warriors pray for every participant by name, before and after every session.

GIVE

Donors cover every cost, so no one is ever asked to pay to heal.

HEALING IS ONE OF THREE

Lutheran Indian Ministries has walked alongside Native people for 40 years. The work rests on three pillars.

PROCLAIM

The Gospel shared in ways rooted in Native culture. We go only where we are invited.

DISCIPLE

Native leaders raised up at Haskell LIGHT, beside Haskell Indian Nations University.

HEAL

The groups on this page — in villages, on reservations, in cities, and online.

1985

SERVING SINCE

40

YEARS OF MINISTRY

575

RECOGNIZED TRIBES

229

TRIBES IN ALASKA

FIND A GROUP · GIVE · LEARN MORE

All healing comes from God.

Lutheran Indian Ministries is a Native-led, independent nonprofit — no church funding, supported entirely by people who believe in this work.

START HERE

limhope.org

or call (262) 439-5663

